Help Make the World a Better Place!

CCAD is in need of dedicated volunteers to enable the organization to move forward and continue our humane and extremely important mission to help homeless animals and animals within the community who are in need of medical help.

Every new committed volunteer is important to the animals and are the lifeblood of the organization.

There are many needs to be filled in the organization, including evening care giving for the cats at the adoption center, helping with fundraisers on the weekends, transporting animals to be spayed and neutered, and many more.

To continue our mission to save the hundreds of deserving and loving animals we assist each year, many new volunteers are required, the need is great, and the need is now. If you can commit at least 1 hour a week to help our animals, and be an important part of the movement to make this world a better place for animals, please call me at 410-827-3148.—Sheila 🐾

FREE OVER THREE!

To celebrate Adopt-A-Shelter-Cat Month this June, Chesapeake Cats and Dogs is partnering with Fresh Step and the ASPCA for a Fee-waived Cat Adoption Campaign.

We're waiving fees for felines over 3 years of age for the month of June, but you gotta get 'em while they're still available! These are wonderful, beautiful cats just looking for a loving home!

Adoption applications are required. All other adoption policies and procedures will remain in effect. For more information, visit Chesapeake Cats & Dogs on Facebook, or call 410-643-9955. 🐾

We Didn't Do Anything Wrong!

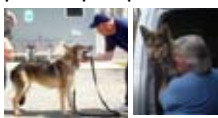

We are sad and confused. After 3 years, our people moved away and were not able to take us with them. We want and deserve a good home together.

Please adopt us, do not forget about us, do not let us down.—Jack (I) and Star

FREE love! Adoption fee waived!

ADOPTION STORIES

WOLFIE'S (now Faith) meet and greet went better than I could have possibly hoped for. Tom and Michelle are the nicest couple and they will adore Wolfie. Wolfie was very comfortable with both of them from the moment she met them. They are going to try to get her used to the name Faith. They would like to rename her Faith, since we had faith that she would find her special home and they had faith that they would find their special dog. They called me earlier this evening and they are madly in love with her. She is giving kisses to both of them and keeps nudging their hands to get them to pet her again. Tom said she loves her fenced yard and she loves their sun-room—she has her own chaise there!

IJUST wanted to let you know that Zoe and Picasso have settled in wonderfully. The boys play and coo over them daily! Picasso is just a love and follows us everywhere! He has his nose in everything we are doing and is known for his big loud sniffs. He does not let us out of sight. He and Bounder have reunited and are best of buddies. Picasso was always the most rambunctious of the kittens and has recharged Bounder. Zoe is back to her loving, carefree self. She runs all over the yard climbing trees, then comes to the window to be let back in. She acts like a kitten again and has regained her beautiful energy. Both sleep with me or the kids every night. Zoe nuzzles in any pillow nook very quietly, and Picasso walks all over you, sniffing loudly, until he finds the perfect spot between your legs. I cannot tell you what joy these cats have brought to our lives. They are just amazing cats...but aren't they all if only given a chance. I am thankful for giving them a chance.—Polly 🐾

Ways To Help Rescue a Dog Without Adopting or Fostering, Part 3

Can you...

64. Go with a rescue person to the vet if a foster dog needs to be euthanized?
65. Go to shelters and meet with staff about how to identify breeds, types, color combinations?
66. Solicit donations from businesses for fundraising events?
67. Help owners be better pet owners by holding a grooming seminar?
68. Help pet owners be better owners by being available to answer training questions?
69. Loan a crate if a dog needs to travel by air?
70. Compile an Owner's Manual for adopters of rescues?
71. Provide postadoption followup or support?
72. Donate a coupon for a free car wash or gas or inside cleaning of a vehicle?
73. Pay for an ad in your local/metropolitan paper to help place rescue dogs?
74. Volunteer to screen calls for that ad?
75. Gather friends to build/repair pens for a foster home?
76. Microchip your own pups if you are a breeder; register the chips, so if your dogs ever come into rescue, you can be contacted to take responsibility for your pup?
77. Donate a percentage of the sale of each pup to rescue if you are a breeder?
78. Buy two of those really neat dog items you "have to have" and donate one to rescue?
79. Make financial arrangements in your will to cover the cost of caring for your dogs after you are gone, so rescue won't have to?
80. Make a bequest to your local or national rescue?
81. Donate your professional services as an accountant or lawyer?
82. Donate other services if you run your own business?
83. Donate use of a vehicle if you own a car dealership?
84. Donate your used dog dryer?
85. Let rescue know when you'll be flying and that you'd be willing to be a rescued dog's escort?
86. Do something not listed above to help rescue?
87. Donate a doggy seatbelt?
88. Donate a grid for a van or other vehicle?
89. Organize a rescued dog picnic or other event to reunite the dogs that have been placed?
90. Donate doggy toys that might be safe for rescues?
91. Donate a roll-a-treat or Buster cube?
92. Donate clickers or a video on clicker training?
93. Donate materials for a quarantine area at a foster's home?
94. Donate sheets of linoleum or other flooring materials to put under crates to protect the foster's floor?
95. Donate an engraving tool to make ID tags for each of the rescued dogs?
96. Donate frequent flyer points so that rescue can fly a dog from another area to safety?
97. Offer to be a rescued dog's flight escort, especially if your work requires you to travel frequently or you work in the travel industry?
98. Do something not listed above to help rescue? 🐾

10 Reasons To Adopt a Cat

1. You may be saving a life.
2. You will potentially save two lives; when you adopt one, cage space becomes available for another.
3. If you're a first-time cat owner, you may learn a lesson: Preconceived expectations aren't always correct. When it comes to cats, there are so many stereotypes that are simply untrue. The best ambassadors for cats are cats.
4. We know that growing up with pets develops a stronger feeling of empathy, and pets teach kids about responsibility.
5. Cats teach kids patience and to respect the sensibilities of others in a way dogs generally do not. A dog is instantly there when kids snap their fingers. Cats generally respond on their own time and in their own way.
6. You will become neater in the kitchen. Leave food on the counter and your four-legged friend will scarf it up.
7. Cats are nonjudgmental. It doesn't matter if you have just been promoted to a six-figure salary or if you are on disability. Cats are able to connect with who we really are.
8. Cats are sensitive. If you are having a bad day, even if your kids or your spouse don't notice, your cat will—and will respond.
9. Kittens are especially adept at making us laugh, but that's true for most cats. And, smiling helps people feel good.
10. Cats are good for our health. In fact, we don't even understand all the benefits yet. Purring is thought to be self-calming for cats, but there's some research that indicates it relaxes people, too. 🐾

A Foster Story

THIS WONDERFUL CAT, Lucy, shown with one of her kittens, Aster, was rescued from the streets of Baltimore by CCAD and fostered at Dandyland during her pregnancy. Lucy and her beautiful kittens are going on to wonderful lives and will never again starve and freeze on the city streets.

Without foster families, the happy ending to Lucy's story would be a sad one. Lucy and countless other cats and dogs could not have been saved by CCAD. Please become a foster family! Our need for dog fosters is acute. If you would consider the rewards of fostering a dog or puppy, please call me at 410-827-3148.—Sheila 🐾
